With a passion for righteousness, the worship of God, and the love for Christ and each other, we are committed to the nurturing and the discipling of every member into a saving relationship with Jesus.

In the belief that the church is a safe place of hope where all people will experience the grace and forgiveness of God, members of this community are mobilized into service for the benefit of both church and community by:

- Accepting the Bible as the sole authority in beliefs and practices

Theme: TRANSFORMED

Learning Today. Leading Tomorrow.

This year's camp meeting theme speaks to the value of education and our divine calling to have a posture of learning throughout our life's journey. More specifically, our theme focuses on the value of education within the Seventh-day Adventist Community of faith in all of its forms: at home, at school; and at church. An inspiring description if found in the mission statement of the Education Department of the Seventh-day Adventist Church in North America. It reads: To enable learners to develop a life of faith in God, and to use their knowledge, skills, and understanding to serve God and humanity. We're thrilled to report that this year's camp meeting theme was selected from over 525 entries submitted by our over 1,00 students in our 26 schools. The Camp Meeting Theme Committee spent much time in prayer and discussion and finally selected the winners from two students, a fifth and sixth grader. Therefore, theme carries with it the heart and thoughts of our young people, whom we continually seek to support and to mentor for the Kingdom.

Education The Adventist community of faith has a long tradition of valuing transformational education, beginning with early pioneers who were voracious student of Scripture. This commitment to education ultimately developed into a global educational system, including 7,000 school, colleges and universities, with 93,000 teachers and 1,814,000 students.

Learning Today. Leading Tomorrow Central is celebrating this commitment with a camp meeting theme that will highlight all aspects of transformational education through all life stages. This year, we will discuss what education means and how our commitment to education today will produce leaders for tomorrow.

Adventist Education Adventist campuses from preschool through graduate school offer opportunities for an individual to grow academically, spiritually and relationally. Central operates 29 schools, with a total of 2,065 students and 205 teachers. Our commitment to education begins with developing an excellent educational system.

Public Campus Education Our commitment to education extends into our public school campuses with various ministries that provide spiritual growth opportunities for both Christians and those seeking God.

Whole-Person Education Education is also experienced within our homes, local churches and schools, through discipling, mentoring and nurturing relationships within our communities. Our commitment to education encourages us to develop ways in which we can continue to grow through all of these areas while actively adding value to others.

Learning Today Finally, people of all ages are called to have an ongoing posture of learning, which implies the basic definition of a disciple - an individual who is a student of a teacher. Our commitment to education encourages us never to assume we know enough, but to continually learn from Jesus and from each other.

Leading Tomorrow Perhaps the most exciting part of education is the outcome in the life of the student and in the lives of those we impact. Students who apply what they have learned can transform lives and communities, ultimately by leader others to Christ.
